Died at age 90 or older. This open age-group appears in the data for years 1939-1950. According to Timo Nikander (from Statistics Finland), these deaths correspond to Finnish citizens who, though registered in a district and do not appear to have left the country, have not given any sign of life over the previous five years and who are thus considered deceased.

Deaths reported in the open age group 90+ by Lexis rectangle for years 1939-1950 were redistributed proportionally to the existing single-year of age deaths by Lexis triangle for age 90 and above in the respective rows.
